

Thank you for coming.

I think all of you know how much I value my privacy.

When I'm at home, that's private. So I consider unsolicited telemarketing calls an invasion of privacy.

That's why last spring, when I signed the "Do Not Call" bill, I told Commissioner Bernstein that I wanted to be the first one to put my name on the list.

That's why we're here today. I'm going to show you how quick and easy it is.

On Monday you can start calling to register your home phone number.

On January 1, that list will be ready for purchase by telemarketers.

Within 30 days, they will be required to buy the Do Not Call List and stop making calls to any numbers that appear on the List.

This law won't solve the problem, but it's a start.

I'm going to register now...while Jim talks more about the registration.
